

Activity 1: Converging Radial

Complete the diagram by writing the importance of knowing the perspective of anthropology, sociology, and political science.

Process Questions: 1. What is the importance of knowing the perspective of the ff:

- a. Anthropology
- b. Sociology
- c. Political Science

Activity 2. My Own Collage

Directions: Using various materials like pictures in magazines, newspapers, and brochures. Create a collage that reflects your understanding of anthropology, sociology, and political science. You may also create a digital collage. Use an A4 bond paper, then take a photo of your output, paste it in an A4 bond paper. Send your output in a portable document format (pdf file). And refer to the rubric for scoring.

- Process Questions:
- a. Anthropology in comparison to sociology and political science shares main ideas surrounding humans. But it differs as anthropology covers a larger field and does go in too finer detail. As it uncovers past prior to present wisdom and seeks on how many societies and histories are formed.
  - b. Sociology studies modern, past and future predictions in how civilizations and society function. From the Macroscopic level of how institutions work and form to benefit and serve society. As it also aims to understands social trends and decision and how they were caused and affect the overall social order.
  - c. Political science can be said as the most practical or important because it is regularly used in creating systems, decisions that are used to govern and maintain citizens of countries, people of the state, and specific groups. As it concerns many people as a whole on how power such as collective interest and money to be used best in the interest of the group and its people.